Neighborhood Alert:

The Allentown Planned Parenthood was cited by the Pennsylvania Department of Health for violating the state requirement to test pregnant women for the Rh protein. In addition to not screening all patients, those who were screened were not prescribed the necessary treatment required for Rh-negative patients which endangers the health of the woman and child. This facility sells abortions up to 13 weeks, and the state of Pennsylvania allows abortions up to 24 weeks, by which point a preborn baby can feel pain and may be capable of surviving outside the womb.
